

3 April 2008

COMAP SPRINGS INTO ACTION WITH NEW HOSE UNION BIBCOCK

In perfect time for spring gardening season, Comap has grown its range of hose union bibcocks.

Launching a further, unique option, the new, highly practical bibcock features a backplate to ensure that when the tap is fitted to the outdoors water connection it always sits perfectly vertical against the wall, rather than tilting, irritatingly, to one side.

Without a backplate, installers sometimes find that they need to make numerous attempts at fitting to ensure that the tap is straight on the wall. Entirely cutting the hassle, the new bibcock means that no tape or other fiddly, time consuming methods are needed to mount the tap effectively – and no wall plate elbow is required either.

The new hose union bibcock completes the collection, which also features two bibcocks with no backplate and one complete with backplate and checkvalve. Offering the ultimate in choice, you can now purchase a bibcock that features a backplate but no checkvalve – so there's a solution for every installation. Blooming marvellous!